

Rhode Island Banks

Making a Difference by Contributing to the Local Economy

Each and every day, Rhode Island's Banks are making a difference in the lives of the people, businesses, and cities and towns within the Ocean State. Rhode Island Banks are an essential part of the economy, providing $2.7 billion in residential mortgages to homeowners and generating $3.7 billion in outstanding loans to small businesses.

Contributions from RI Banks to local non-profit organizations through donations, grants, and matching gifts total more than $15.2 million. Member Banks have also reached out to thousands of Rhode Island students through financial literacy programs featuring online and mobile web programs, and many offer these programs to adults as well, to help build the financial awareness of all Rhode Islanders.

In addition to promoting growth and jobs through lending, RI Banks employ more than 9,600 people. In 2021, RI Banks and their employees donated more than $1.4 million to the United Way, and Bank employees volunteered more than 95,000 hours of service to help their neighbors in need.

Some of our nation's oldest banks were founded and still operate here in Rhode Island. With this rich history, Rhode Island's Bankers have played a key role in our state's past and will continue to do so in the future.
